Millionaires Made by War Oust Oil and Coal Kings As U. S. Financial Rulers

Schwab and Du Pont Family, the Leaders, Albert W. Atwood Shows in Analysis.

Albert W. Atwood, a specialist on Wall Street and business conditions, has written for the American Magazine for February an article on "Americans Made Rich and Powerful by the War." He sets forth that "a new dynasty" in finance, that of the munition makers, has succeeded to the dynasties of the period after the civil war, the coal and oil and transportation kings and the group of money monarchs produced by the steel and tobacco industry reorganizations.

Charles M. Schwab and the du Pont family of Delaware, the writer holds, emerge head and shoulders out of the "hurly burly of war made millionaires." He says: "Schwab on the one hand and the du Ponts on the other have their hosts of lieutenants, satellites on the grand scale, with incomes ranging up to one million dollars a year, the Schwab scale."

Mr. Atwood calls them a double product of the "bonus" system of salaries and a sudden, unexpected dilution into company shares of huge but heretofore privately concentrated wealth. Of the du Ponts he says: "The du Ponts were the purple born, as were long generations of their ancestors before them. The du Ponts are young, and there are a host of them. Two generations are in the business to-day, the older barely middle-aged, the younger barely more than youthful. In old, picturesque, conservative Wilmington they have long controlled the banks, trust companies, utilities, two of the newspapers, and a hotel big enough for London, to say nothing of surrounding country estates, game preserves and fancy breeding farms.

"For absolute ability to rise up, appreciate, and cash in upon the European war the du Ponts have no equals. Alone among big munition makers, they have been ahead in their deliveries at a time when such speed might mean life or death to certain European empires. At least one of their sixty-eight plants is turning out more than half a million pounds a day of high explosives.

"Here, perhaps, is the only counterpoint of the Standard Oil and Carnegie Steel as mother of uncounted fortunes. "For a downright 'gold mine' du Pont Powder has no equals. In 1902, control of the business was acquired by T. Coleman du Pont, who had not previously had any connection with the company, and by Pierre and Alfred L. du Pont. Pierre and his relatives paid Cousin Coleman $200 a share for his eighty thousand shares. That was in March, 1915. A few months later the stock sold at $700 a share. Then they formed a new company, gave themselves a new share of stock for each old one, and kept the old stock as well. At this writing the new stock, which itself was a dividend, is selling around $400 a share, and has begun to pay regular dividends of 6 per cent. a year, and one extra of 28 1/2 per cent."

NEW COMPANIES NET CASH PROFIT OF 500 PER CENT.

A Government dissolution order caused the reorganization of the business into three companies which have so prospered that the owner of 100 shares of the old stock, worth $18,500 at the time of the "dissolution," has now a cash profit of $90,000, or 500 per cent. The du Ponts have allowed their employees from Vice-Presidents to day laborers to buy stock and have given it to them in bonuses.

The du Ponts have branched out into other industries. They have five Directors in the General Motors Company; they are heavily interested in the Remington Arms Company and in the Baldwin Locomotive Works. Dye, chemical and denatured alcohol factories are contemplated.

In recounting the financial power through the building up of Bethlehem Steel, of Charles M. Schwab, once to all intents and purposes ruled off the hard turf of Wall Street by J. Pierpont Morgan the elder, Mr. Atwood, says, after explaining Schwab's method: "So to-day the Bethlehem Steel Corporation is probably the greatest individual industrial achievement in the country. Charles M. Schwab has made it so with his ability, energy, hard work and conservatism, and to-day he stands in the same financial relation to the Bethlehem Steel as Andrew Carnegie stood to the Carnegie Steel Company."

"Schwab worked for Carnegie as a boy, and to all intents and purposes he has made out of his once small and poorly considered steel business a second Carnegie Steel. He is the man to dictate terms, just as Carnegie was. He is the lone, dominating figure in this vast, humming enterprise. "But Schwab has developed about him a group of young men, just as Carnegie did. None of them stands out as did Frick, Schwab and Corey among Carnegie's 'boys.' But they are a vigorous and exceedingly wealthy lot. Thus far they have stuck to the steel business, eschewed New York, and live in South Bethlehem, on a street happily known as Honor Row. Eugene G. Grace, who ranks next to Schwab, is only thirty-eight years old. He was the son of a poor village storekeeper, and began as a laborer. His yearly income amounts to well over $1,000,000—thanks to bonuses."

Marcellus Hartley Dodge inherited the $10,000,000 estate of his grandfather, owner of the Remington and Union Metallic Cartridge Works. Through co-operation with Samuel F. Pryor, a manager imported from St. Louis by Dodge several years ago, new plants were swiftly built in many cities. With Samuel Vauclain of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, a plant which was cramped and of uncertain prosperity, Pryor built a vast munitions factory on the river, fifteen miles from Philadelphia.

With Percy Rockefeller, William E. Corey and others the Midvale Steel Company was bought and merged with the other Dodge interests. Says Mr. Atwood: "This means that a market valuation of close to $150,000,000 was put upon a concern with three parts, one of which was capitalized at $750,000 only five years ago; the second part was a private concern the value of which had never been publicly known, and the third part was the yet a barely completed ammunition plant."

YOUNG MEN OF COUNTRY DOING SPECULATING NOW. In speaking of the future, Mr. Atwood states: "Just as fifteen years ago the enormous inflation in share values proved then to be preliminary steps in capitalizing the new combinations for enormously expanded amounts and selling them as investments to the uninformed public for real money, so the same old process is now in a fair way of being repeated."

"Curiously, and yet naturally All lost or found articles advertised in The World will be listed at The World's Information Bureau, Pulitzer Building, Arcade, Park Row; World's Edition Office, northwest corner, 28th St. and Broadway; World's Edition Office, 155 West 125th St., and World's Edition Office, 202 Washington St., Brooklyn, for 30 days following the printing of the advertisement."

enough, the young men of the country are doing the speculating to-day. The young men who were graduated from college ten or fifteen years ago and began work at $15 a week did not dabble in the speculative excesses that marked the opening of the century. "But to-day these same men are the generation now in the business saddle. Above all, they do not know what it is to lose fortunes in the market, for there have been no large stock markets for years. Ask any broker whether the old fellows, the ones who hung around in 1901, are back again."

FOR FILIPINO INDEPENDENCE.

Senator McComber Urges It, Saying Islands Are a Menace.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Senator McComber, Republican, urged to-day that the people of the Philippine Islands should be given their independence, asserting that the United States not only was morally bound to such action, but that possession of the islands was a constant menace from a military point of view.

He introduced an amendment to the pending bill for extending to the Philippines a greater degree of self-government, which would authorize the President to seek an international agreement to guarantee the autonomy of the islands, and the Philippines in establishing a stable Government and then to proclaim independence. Senator Thompson of Kansas spoke in favor of the bill. A vote on it is expected Saturday.

Flashlights Their Weapons. ROCHESTER, Jan. 14.—When Frank

Roid, twenty-two, and Joseph Harper, eighteen, were arraigned in Police Court to-day, they pleaded guilty, not only to the four hold-ups with which they were charged, but also to burglarizing three dwellings. In the hold-ups, flashlights, instead of guns, were used to intimidate the victims, all of whom were women. They were held for the Grand Jury.

WORLD WANTS WORK WONDERS

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life, has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair; besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots flounder, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made. We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?
